

Upstart Now Available In Debian Unstable

Written by Phoronix

Tuesday, 27 November 2012 07:02 - Last Updated Tuesday, 27 November 2012 08:40

Steve Langasek of Canonical has pushed their latest Upstart init daemon into Debian unstable. Debian GNU/Linux can now handle either SysVinit, systemd, and Upstart to handle a head-to-head system booting battle.

Steve Langasek of Canonical has pushed their latest Upstart init daemon into Debian unstable. Debian GNU/Linux can now handle either SysVinit, systemd, and Upstart to handle a head-to-head system booting battle.

Read more at Phoronix