

Open Recall: A Linux gun, Steam fun and Slax's new boot

Written by The H

Thursday, 10 January 2013 07:03 - Last Updated Thursday, 10 January 2013 07:59

A rifle with a Linux-powered brain, the Linux score on Steam, Fuduntu's Netflix and Steam support, PXE booting for Slax, the latest Samsung sourcery, and Rekonq's latest stable browser...

Open Recall is a space on The H for those things that are too small to package as news but are worth covering. In this edition: A linuxy gun, Steam fun, Fuduntu, Slax, Samsung source and rekonq.

- Linux-powered gun – TrackingPoint was sighted by Ars Technica at CES offering customised rifles with a Linux-powered scope that automatically compensates for temperature, humidity and wind. And it has Wi-Fi to broadcast what the scope sees to an iPad. All this for $17,000.

Steam powered fun – The end-of-year numbers from Valve's Hardware and Software Survey for December 2012 show Steam for Linux debuting...Read more at The H